Baltimore birthed the bottle cap, the railroad, and legions of Liberty ships. The twists of history have deleted some of that legacy, but remnants of that industrial power still remain all over town. Open Works sits in the heart of one of Baltimore's original manufacturing districts, a stone's throw from the old Crown Cork and Seal complex and the former Lebow Brothers Clothing factory. Having just visited The Foundry, our delegation will have the opportunity to visit and compare it with a non-profit makerspace model.

During a conversation featuring Jason Perkins-Cohen, Director of Employment Development for Baltimore City Mayor Pugh and Kanika Feaster-Gordon, Vice-President of Workforce Development for Humanim, the delegation will learn about efforts to facilitate the economic growth of individuals and communities.

21. Daily expenses for meals are less than the per diem rate. Lodging expenses exceed the October 2018 per diem rate by $3 because the hotel contract was signed in May 2018, prior to GSA posting the October 2018 rate. Absent the October 2018 rate, we predicted and based lodging expenses on the September 2018 per diem rate, which GSA posted as $160.
